

BRISBANE THIS WEEK

Nice Lump Sum
The President at Work
Free Tomatoes
Button-Pushing Days
Congress will give President Roosevelt a lump sum, a considerable sum of four thousand million dollars, to let him change from the system of dols and initiatives, "licking up leaves and pieces of paper," to real jobs and useful work.

In his new White House offices, President Roosevelt is at work on a "social security program," which will include unemployment insurance and old age pensions. The idea is to let pay rolls contribute to the cost of insurance and pensions. This might work well with normal pay rolls.

You hope that the President, in his wisdom, will include in any "security" program security for individuals, old and out of a job.

Unemployment insurance and old age pensions would do little good if a few thousand planes could fly from Europe or Asia to bomb our cities and spray them with poison gas. If they came on, they could do exactly as they pleased. We have no way of interfering with them.

Bruno Hauptmann's musings on the fate's vagaries were interrupted the other day by a strange offer from Mr. Stanislaus Hartman, who owns the old Flemingston stone works, manufacturing tombstones, just opposite the Hauptmann jail.

Hauptmann was told, "If you are to die to the electric chair, free, pick out your own tombstone, free, and help you see the epitaph. I will make it a work of art that will go a long way to see, that any man would be proud to have."

It should take genius to devise a tombstone that "any man would be proud to have" if he got it after being executed for murder.

It is a coming when no man will do any work harder than pressing a button, and science, incidentally, will make crime obsolete.

For instance, the Juliet (113) later met a fat "trust" car, a Buick, a Buick, and the automobile "electric eye" at the gate saw him, flashed a light and the innocent fat "trust" car was searched. A small metal ashtray was found in his possession.

The electric eye flashes when anybody passing the gate has any sort of metal in his possession. A prisoner's friend here can take in a pistol, file or steel saw.

If you buy alcoholic drinks, buy from dealers in who have confidence. The federal government has seized one million one hundred thousand empty whisky, wine and liquor bottles to prevent bootleggers from selling them.

An empty whisky bottle, bought for two cents, filled with eight cents worth of bootleg whisky, may mean profit for the bootlegger and mean poverty for the consumer. Buy from a dealer when you buy liquor legally, and buy brands that you know.

To comfort those appropriating and spending large sums of public money fighting the depression, it can be said quite reasonably, that there would be more, confiding that the normal income of the United States, in really good times, is close to $100,000,000,000. If a man spent one or even two years' income to settle all his troubles you think the price reasonable.

It would be a silly mistake, of course, to lose the $100,000,000,000 in bonds and pay out another $100,000,000,000 for interest, unnecessarily. That needs to be said and will be said quite often.

To read that Harry MacCracken, seventy-five-year-old retired cattle rancher, jumped up by a handkerchief to sit still, and "drilled" the handkerchief through the shoulder, is mildly interesting. It is more interesting to read that it happened in a "nub" of the Colorado, where MacCracken spends his time sitting by the stove, "whittling." To sit whittling by a liquor store and make a occupation for one seventy-five years old, who knows that time is whittling away his few remaining days.

The AAA asks congress for complete authority over all crops, all farm activities, and for $800,000,000 to $900,000,000 to move farmers from poor farms to better farms.

It is all benevolently planned, but many a farmer would prefer to stamp his foot and clip his hands in the old independent way.

News Review of Current Events the World Over

Supreme Court Takes Up Gold Clause Abrogation Case—Senate Committee Favors World Court Adherence—Congress Gets the Budget.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

HAVING given the New Deal a slight twist by holding the petroleum control feature of the NIRA unconstitutional, the Supreme Court moved rapidly toward a "social security program," which will include unemployment insurance and old age pensions. The idea is to let pay rolls contribute to the cost of insurance and pensions. This might work well with normal pay rolls.

You hope that the President, in his wisdom, will include in any "security" program security for individuals, old and out of a job.

Unemployment insurance and old age pensions would do little good if a few thousand planes could fly from Europe or Asia to bomb our cities and spray them with poison gas. If they came on, they could do exactly as they pleased. We have no way of interfering with them.

Bruno Hauptmann's musings on the fate's vagaries were interrupted the other day by a strange offer from Mr. Stanislaus Hartman, who owns the old Flemingston stone works, manufacturing tombstones, just opposite the Hauptmann jail.

Hauptmann was told, "If you are to die to the electric chair, free, pick out your own tombstone, free, and help you see the epitaph. I will make it a work of art that will go a long way to see, that any man would be proud to have."

It should take genius to devise a tombstone that "any man would be proud to have" if he got it after being executed for murder.

It is a coming when no man will do any work harder than pressing a button, and science, incidentally, will make crime obsolete.

For instance, the Juliet (113) later met a fat "trust" car, a Buick, a Buick, and the automobile "electric eye" at the gate saw him, flashed a light and the innocent fat "trust" car was searched. A small metal ashtray was found in his possession.

The electric eye flashes when anybody passing the gate has any sort of metal in his possession. A prisoner's friend here can take in a pistol, file or steel saw.

If you buy alcoholic drinks, buy from dealers in who have confidence. The federal government has seized one million one hundred thousand empty whisky, wine and liquor bottles to prevent bootleggers from selling them.

An empty whisky bottle, bought for two cents, filled with eight cents worth of bootleg whisky, may mean profit for the bootlegger and mean poverty for the consumer. Buy from a dealer when you buy liquor legally, and buy brands that you know.

To comfort those appropriating and spending large sums of public money fighting the depression, it can be said quite reasonably, that there would be more, confiding that the normal income of the United States, in really good times, is close to $100,000,000,000. If a man spent one or even two years' income to settle all his troubles you think the price reasonable.

It would be a silly mistake, of course, to lose the $100,000,000,000 in bonds and pay out another $100,000,000,000 for interest, unnecessarily. That needs to be said and will be said quite often.

To read that Harry MacCracken, seventy-five-year-old retired cattle rancher, jumped up by a handkerchief to sit still, and "drilled" the handkerchief through the shoulder, is mildly interesting. It is more interesting to read that it happened in a "nub" of the Colorado, where MacCracken spends his time sitting by the stove, "whittling." To sit whittling by a liquor store and make a occupation for one seventy-five years old, who knows that time is whittling away his few remaining days.

The AAA asks congress for complete authority over all crops, all farm activities, and for $800,000,000 to $900,000,000 to move farmers from poor farms to better farms.

It is all benevolently planned, but many a farmer would prefer to stamp his foot and clip his hands in the old independent way.

Says MILL ROGERS

BEVERLY HILLS—Well all I know is just what I read in the papers, and what I hear as it sits around on a moving picture set and argue about it. We are still a football game over, there is not a man in the world that I don't think that I can't win. I don't think that I can't win. I don't think that I can't win.

shows, but there is something about that Rose Bowl that just makes me do the wrong thing every time only get there. They want to talk about deciding that Rose Bowl that just makes me do the wrong thing every time only get there.

Skunk Given Rating as Friend of the Farmer Investigation by the United States bureau of biological survey shows that the main diet of skunks consists of grasshoppers, crickets, beetles, mice, rats, ground squirrels, pocket gophers and sometimes stems of succulent plants. They are not averse to a ground bird if they can catch them, and now and then, they are caught raiding a farm chicken house.

However, bureau of biological survey reports that skunks rarely make these raids, preferring to do their hunting at distances from the haunts of men.

Although usually safe because of its protective "mellin-gum," the skunk sometimes falls victim to minks, coyotes, foxes, badgers, and groundhog owls.

The general color of the skunk is black with a thin white stripe along the sides until it reaches the tail. The tail is furred with black hairs with white bases, and ends usually with white tuft. There is much variation in width of these stripes, rations preferring pelts with the narrowest stripes.

Skunks vary in size, but usually weigh from five to ten pounds. They are usually intelligent and affectionate, of quick sympathy and winning, gracious ways. They are the apple of Mr. Gatlin's eye, and by the time they are ten years old he no longer cared a snap of his finger for his wife.

If Penelope was Mr. Gatlin's wife, he would have been a very good husband. He was a very good husband. He was a very good husband. He was a very good husband.

Mr. Gatlin's nerves did not improve through the years, although when Penelope was ten years old, a wandering minstrel came to town and commenced a furious campaign of conversation and curing by every day of the French citizen of St. Pierre, Minnesota, who dreamed when the schooner sailed into the harbor.

The commissioners found that the master and members of the crew were not up to a liquor smuggling conspiracy.

There were huge signs of relief in the chancelleries of Europe when the success of the conference in Rome between Premier Mussolini and Premier MacDonald was announced.

Pierre Laval smiling broadly, said to the French minister of foreign affairs, "I am glad to tell you that Premier Mussolini is now waiting for an official communiqué, though the best informed said Laval and if those had reached a full agreement, the price would be a six or six power pact for colonial conquest, and provisions for colonial conquest, and provisions for colonial conquest."

The legal import and export of resins is a subject that has been discussed in the Senate. The Senate has been discussing the subject for some time. The Senate has been discussing the subject for some time.

Senator Huxley P. Long, after attacking the administration on the floor of the Senate, took himself to the radio and continued the assault. He declared the Roosevelt policies were hopeless, and summoned all the people to flock to his banner and help him to break over the heads of the traitors.

It is going to be an interesting session of Congress. The question will be who is going to break over the heads of the traitors. The question will be who is going to break over the heads of the traitors.

Public Works Administrator, Arkansas over the building of a new dam in the Colorado river and the state and its "navy," consisting of one hundred and thirty-four thousand dollars, and the state and its "navy," consisting of one hundred and thirty-four thousand dollars.

The governor of Arizona recently kept the militia and his navy to keep the state and its "navy," consisting of one hundred and thirty-four thousand dollars, and the state and its "navy," consisting of one hundred and thirty-four thousand dollars.

Way It Usually is Psychologists at the University of Wisconsin discovered that the graph shows no clue to the fitness for the country. The graph shows no clue to the fitness for the country.

Golden Lawn

By Peter B. Kyne
Copyright by Bill Synthesis
WHD Service

CHAPTER I—Continued
Theodore Gattin decided to adopt a marital truce.

When six months had passed, Mr. Gatlin decided he had never been acquainted with her, for she failed to make any demand upon him for her alimony; hence he realized she preferred, by keeping Penelope from him, to cause him the maximum of suffering rather than reveal her whereabouts by making a claim for the alimony due her.

She was a pretty child, of olive complexion, with very dark blue eyes and rich, shiny, jet black hair. She was usually intelligent and affectionate, of quick sympathy and winning, gracious ways. They are the apple of Mr. Gatlin's eye, and by the time they are ten years old he no longer cared a snap of his finger for his wife.

If Penelope was Mr. Gatlin's wife, he would have been a very good husband. He was a very good husband. He was a very good husband. He was a very good husband.

Mr. Gatlin's nerves did not improve through the years, although when Penelope was ten years old, a wandering minstrel came to town and commenced a furious campaign of conversation and curing by every day of the French citizen of St. Pierre, Minnesota, who dreamed when the schooner sailed into the harbor.

The commissioners found that the master and members of the crew were not up to a liquor smuggling conspiracy.

There were huge signs of relief in the chancelleries of Europe when the success of the conference in Rome between Premier Mussolini and Premier MacDonald was announced.

Pierre Laval smiling broadly, said to the French minister of foreign affairs, "I am glad to tell you that Premier Mussolini is now waiting for an official communiqué, though the best informed said Laval and if those had reached a full agreement, the price would be a six or six power pact for colonial conquest, and provisions for colonial conquest, and provisions for colonial conquest."

The legal import and export of resins is a subject that has been discussed in the Senate. The Senate has been discussing the subject for some time. The Senate has been discussing the subject for some time.

Senator Huxley P. Long, after attacking the administration on the floor of the Senate, took himself to the radio and continued the assault. He declared the Roosevelt policies were hopeless, and summoned all the people to flock to his banner and help him to break over the heads of the traitors.

It is going to be an interesting session of Congress. The question will be who is going to break over the heads of the traitors. The question will be who is going to break over the heads of the traitors.

Public Works Administrator, Arkansas over the building of a new dam in the Colorado river and the state and its "navy," consisting of one hundred and thirty-four thousand dollars, and the state and its "navy," consisting of one hundred and thirty-four thousand dollars.

The governor of Arizona recently kept the militia and his navy to keep the state and its "navy," consisting of one hundred and thirty-four thousand dollars, and the state and its "navy," consisting of one hundred and thirty-four thousand dollars.

Way It Usually is Psychologists at the University of Wisconsin discovered that the graph shows no clue to the fitness for the country. The graph shows no clue to the fitness for the country.

Public Works Administrator, Arkansas over the building of a new dam in the Colorado river and the state and its "navy," consisting of one hundred and thirty-four thousand dollars, and the state and its "navy," consisting of one hundred and thirty-four thousand dollars.

The governor of Arizona recently kept the militia and his navy to keep the state and its "navy," consisting of one hundred and thirty-four thousand dollars, and the state and its "navy," consisting of one hundred and thirty-four thousand dollars.

Way It Usually is Psychologists at the University of Wisconsin discovered that the graph shows no clue to the fitness for the country. The graph shows no clue to the fitness for the country.

Golden Lawn

By Peter B. Kyne
Copyright by Bill Synthesis
WHD Service

CHAPTER I—Continued
Theodore Gattin decided to adopt a marital truce.

When six months had passed, Mr. Gatlin decided he had never been acquainted with her, for she failed to make any demand upon him for her alimony; hence he realized she preferred, by keeping Penelope from him, to cause him the maximum of suffering rather than reveal her whereabouts by making a claim for the alimony due her.

She was a pretty child, of olive complexion, with very dark blue eyes and rich, shiny, jet black hair. She was usually intelligent and affectionate, of quick sympathy and winning, gracious ways. They are the apple of Mr. Gatlin's eye, and by the time they are ten years old he no longer cared a snap of his finger for his wife.

If Penelope was Mr. Gatlin's wife, he would have been a very good husband. He was a very good husband. He was a very good husband. He was a very good husband.

Mr. Gatlin's nerves did not improve through the years, although when Penelope was ten years old, a wandering minstrel came to town and commenced a furious campaign of conversation and curing by every day of the French citizen of St. Pierre, Minnesota, who dreamed when the schooner sailed into the harbor.

The commissioners found that the master and members of the crew were not up to a liquor smuggling conspiracy.

There were huge signs of relief in the chancelleries of Europe when the success of the conference in Rome between Premier Mussolini and Premier MacDonald was announced.

Pierre Laval smiling broadly, said to the French minister of foreign affairs, "I am glad to tell you that Premier Mussolini is now waiting for an official communiqué, though the best informed said Laval and if those had reached a full agreement, the price would be a six or six power pact for colonial conquest, and provisions for colonial conquest, and provisions for colonial conquest."

The legal import and export of resins is a subject that has been discussed in the Senate. The Senate has been discussing the subject for some time. The Senate has been discussing the subject for some time.

Senator Huxley P. Long, after attacking the administration on the floor of the Senate, took himself to the radio and continued the assault. He declared the Roosevelt policies were hopeless, and summoned all the people to flock to his banner and help him to break over the heads of the traitors.

It is going to be an interesting session of Congress. The question will be who is going to break over the heads of the traitors. The question will be who is going to break over the heads of the traitors.

Public Works Administrator, Arkansas over the building of a new dam in the Colorado river and the state and its "navy," consisting of one hundred and thirty-four thousand dollars, and the state and its "navy," consisting of one hundred and thirty-four thousand dollars.

The governor of Arizona recently kept the militia and his navy to keep the state and its "navy," consisting of one hundred and thirty-four thousand dollars, and the state and its "navy," consisting of one hundred and thirty-four thousand dollars.

Way It Usually is Psychologists at the University of Wisconsin discovered that the graph shows no clue to the fitness for the country. The graph shows no clue to the fitness for the country.

Public Works Administrator, Arkansas over the building of a new dam in the Colorado river and the state and its "navy," consisting of one hundred and thirty-four thousand dollars, and the state and its "navy," consisting of one hundred and thirty-four thousand dollars.

The governor of Arizona recently kept the militia and his navy to keep the state and its "navy," consisting of one hundred and thirty-four thousand dollars, and the state and its "navy," consisting of one hundred and thirty-four thousand dollars.

Way It Usually is Psychologists at the University of Wisconsin discovered that the graph shows no clue to the fitness for the country. The graph shows no clue to the fitness for the country.

All-Important Little Dinner Hats

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

FROM the supreme court of fashion comes the ultimatum that the formal dinner hat must be worn. The hat must be of a color and a style that is in vogue. The hat must be of a color and a style that is in vogue.

It is a coming when no man will do any work harder than pressing a button, and science, incidentally, will make crime obsolete.

For instance, the Juliet (113) later met a fat "trust" car, a Buick, a Buick, and the automobile "electric eye" at the gate saw him, flashed a light and the innocent fat "trust" car was searched. A small metal ashtray was found in his possession.

The electric eye flashes when anybody passing the gate has any sort of metal in his possession. A prisoner's friend here can take in a pistol, file or steel saw.

If you buy alcoholic drinks, buy from dealers in who have confidence. The federal government has seized one million one hundred thousand empty whisky, wine and liquor bottles to prevent bootleggers from selling them.

An empty whisky bottle, bought for two cents, filled with eight cents worth of bootleg whisky, may mean profit for the bootlegger and mean poverty for the consumer. Buy from a dealer when you buy liquor legally, and buy brands that you know.

To comfort those appropriating and spending large sums of public money fighting the depression, it can be said quite reasonably, that there would be more, confiding that the normal income of the United States, in really good times, is close to $100,000,000,000. If a man spent one or even two years' income to settle all his troubles you think the price reasonable.

It would be a silly mistake, of course, to lose the $100,000,000,000 in bonds and pay out another $100,000,000,000 for interest, unnecessarily. That needs to be said and will be said quite often.

To read that Harry MacCracken, seventy-five-year-old retired cattle rancher, jumped up by a handkerchief to sit still, and "drilled" the handkerchief through the shoulder, is mildly interesting. It is more interesting to read that it happened in a "nub" of the Colorado, where MacCracken spends his time sitting by the stove, "whittling." To sit whittling by a liquor store and make a occupation for one seventy-five years old, who knows that time is whittling away his few remaining days.

The AAA asks congress for complete authority over all crops, all farm activities, and for $800,000,000 to $900,000,000 to move farmers from poor farms to better farms.

It is all benevolently planned, but many a farmer would prefer to stamp his foot and clip his hands in the old independent way.

The end of prohibition has not yielded all that was promised, and hoped for, in reform and in each. Two thirds of all the whisky sold is still bootleg whisky. That clients Uncle Sam, and police, army and navy, are in the hands of the administration.

In his New York city, many went to hospitals after a "gay" New Year's eve. It is little consolation to hear that the number of alcoholics was somewhat smaller than during prohibition years.

It is little consolation to hear that the number of alcoholics was somewhat smaller than during prohibition years.

It is little consolation to hear that the number of alcoholics was somewhat smaller than during prohibition years.

It is little consolation to hear that the number of alcoholics was somewhat smaller than during prohibition years.

It is little consolation to hear that the number of alcoholics was somewhat smaller than during prohibition years.

All-Important Little Dinner Hats

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

FROM the supreme court of fashion comes the ultimatum that the formal dinner hat must be worn. The hat must be of a color and a style that is in vogue. The hat must be of a color and a style that is in vogue.

It is a coming when no man will do any work harder than pressing a button, and science, incidentally, will make crime obsolete.

For instance, the Juliet (113) later met a fat "trust" car, a Buick, a Buick, and the automobile "electric eye" at the gate saw him, flashed a light and the innocent fat "trust" car was searched. A small metal ashtray was found in his possession.

The electric eye flashes when anybody passing the gate has any sort of metal in his possession. A prisoner's friend here can take in a pistol, file or steel saw.

If you buy alcoholic drinks, buy from dealers in who have confidence. The federal government has seized one million one hundred thousand empty whisky, wine and liquor bottles to prevent bootleggers from selling them.

An empty whisky bottle, bought for two cents, filled with eight cents worth of bootleg whisky, may mean profit for the bootlegger and mean poverty for the consumer. Buy from a dealer when you buy liquor legally, and buy brands that you know.

To comfort those appropriating and spending large sums of public money fighting the depression, it can be said quite reasonably, that there would be more, confiding that the normal income of the United States, in really good times, is close to $100,000,000,000. If a man spent one or even two years' income to settle all his troubles you think the price reasonable.

It would be a silly mistake, of course, to lose the $100,000,000,000 in bonds and pay out another $100,000,000,000 for interest, unnecessarily. That needs to be said and will be said quite often.

To read that Harry MacCracken, seventy-five-year-old retired cattle rancher, jumped up by a handkerchief to sit still, and "drilled" the handkerchief through the shoulder, is mildly interesting. It is more interesting to read that it happened in a "nub" of the Colorado, where MacCracken spends his time sitting by the stove, "whittling." To sit whittling by a liquor store and make a occupation for one seventy-five years old, who knows that time is whittling away his few remaining days.

The AAA asks congress for complete authority over all crops, all farm activities, and for $800,000,000 to $900,000,000 to move farmers from poor farms to better farms.

It is all benevolently planned, but many a farmer would prefer to stamp his foot and clip his hands in the old independent way.

The end of prohibition has not yielded all that was promised, and hoped for, in reform and in each. Two thirds of all the whisky sold is still bootleg whisky. That clients Uncle Sam, and police, army and navy, are in the hands of the administration.

In his New York city, many went to hospitals after a "gay" New Year's eve. It is little consolation to hear that the number of alcoholics was somewhat smaller than during prohibition years.

It is little consolation to hear that the number of alcoholics was somewhat smaller than during prohibition years.

It is little consolation to hear that the number of alcoholics was somewhat smaller than during prohibition years.

It is little consolation to hear that the number of alcoholics was somewhat smaller than during prohibition years.

It is little consolation to hear that the number of alcoholics was somewhat smaller than during prohibition years.

New Theory Put Forth to Explain Bird Flight

Flight of birds as a kind of rocket action, like that imagined for stratosphere rockets or for the still more fantastic vehicles conceived as traveling some day to other planets or to the stars, is a new idea proposed in France by Dr. R. Batist, life-long student of bird behavior.

A bird's muscles are larger and stronger in proportion than the muscles of animals which do not fly, but Doctor Batist says there is no proof that this difference is great enough to justify the conventional flight of birds. Gliding flight is easy to explain, but the difference in taking advantage of air currents as is used by human aviators, but this does not account for abilities of birds to do many things inexplicable by gliding; for example, to rise in still air.

Doctor Batist's new theory is that the feathers of a bird's moving wing create a continual stream of air backward along the wing surface, like the exhaust gases of an airplane engine or the gaseous discharge of a rocket. The forward reaction creates a continual stream of air backward along the wing surface, like the exhaust gases of an airplane engine or the gaseous discharge of a rocket. The forward reaction creates a continual stream of air backward along the wing surface, like the exhaust gases of an airplane engine or the gaseous discharge of a rocket.

Doctor Batist's new theory is that the feathers of a bird's moving wing create a continual stream of air backward along the wing surface, like the exhaust gases of an airplane engine or the gaseous discharge of a rocket. The forward reaction creates a continual stream of air backward along the wing surface, like the exhaust gases of an airplane engine or the gaseous discharge of a rocket.

Doctor Batist's new theory is that the feathers of a bird's moving wing create a continual stream of air backward along the wing surface, like the exhaust gases of an airplane engine or the gaseous discharge of a rocket. The forward reaction creates a continual stream of air backward along the wing surface, like the exhaust gases of an airplane engine or the gaseous discharge of a rocket.

Doctor Batist's new theory is that the feathers of a bird's moving wing create a continual stream of air backward along the wing surface, like the exhaust gases of an airplane engine or the gaseous discharge of a rocket. The forward reaction creates a continual stream of air backward along the wing surface, like the exhaust gases of an airplane engine or the gaseous discharge of a rocket.

Doctor Batist's new theory is that the feathers of a bird's moving wing create a continual stream of air backward along the wing surface, like the exhaust gases of an airplane engine or the gaseous discharge of a rocket. The forward reaction creates a continual stream of air backward along the wing surface, like the exhaust gases of an airplane engine or the gaseous discharge of a rocket.

Doctor Batist's new theory is that the feathers of a bird's moving wing create a continual stream of air backward along the wing surface, like the exhaust gases of an airplane engine or the gaseous discharge of a rocket. The forward reaction creates a continual stream of air backward along the wing surface, like the exhaust gases of an airplane engine or the gaseous discharge of a rocket.

Doctor Batist's new theory is that the feathers of a bird's moving wing create a continual stream of air backward along the wing surface, like the exhaust gases of an airplane engine or the gaseous discharge of a rocket. The forward reaction creates a continual stream of air backward along the wing surface, like the exhaust gases of an airplane engine or the gaseous discharge of a rocket.

Doctor Batist's new theory is that the feathers of a bird's moving wing create a continual stream of air backward along the wing surface, like the exhaust gases of an airplane engine or the gaseous discharge of a rocket. The forward reaction creates a continual stream of air backward along the wing surface, like the exhaust gases of an airplane engine or the gaseous discharge of a rocket.

Doctor Batist's new theory is that the feathers of a bird's moving wing create a continual stream of air backward along the wing surface, like the exhaust gases of an airplane engine or the gaseous discharge of a rocket. The forward reaction creates a continual stream of air backward along the wing surface, like the exhaust gases of an airplane engine or the gaseous discharge of a rocket.